

I agree with Option 1 and 2 and strongly disagree with Options 3 and 4.

My preference is Option 1. Please leave the use of homeopathics exactly as it currently is.

I have used homeopathics for my personal health over many years, as have members of my family, and I trust in their efficacy. I also believe that their use over hundreds of years validates them as medical products, in the same way that herbs are valued for their medicinal properties.

Please allow Australians the freedom to choose the medical approach they prefer. Not all methods work for all people, and to restrict the use of homeopathy would severely disadvantage those who prefer to use it for their wellbeing.

Is this 'the land of the free'? Why would we introduce such legislation to restrict access to homeopathics? Can Australia think independently and really stand up for what is in our best interests for the wellbeing of our people?

Please allow the use of homeopathics to continue as it is!
