I have used homeopathic medicine for nearly 30 years.

I have regular medical checkups – use the services of doctors but on three major occasions, after extensive taking of prescription creams and drugs and getting no relief I turned to homeopathy. On each of these occasions within two weeks I had the healing I was needing.

I am a great believer that each branch of medicine/healing has its place. It is now time the good/bad approach is dropped and we grow into a collective society where each form of medicine/healing works in co-operation with others.

I am therefore in favour of Option 1 and see that Option 3 and 4 would be detrimental to the Australian public and taking away their individual rights of choosing what is successful and works for them.
